Advocacy Guidelines for the Nationwide Advocacy Service

Pursuant to section 28 (1) of the Health and Disability Commissioner Act 1994 ("the Act"), I, Annette King, Minister of Health, hereby approve the following guidelines made by the Health and Disability Commissioner.

Dated at Wellington this 15th day of March 2005.

ANNETTE KING, Minister of Health.

Advocacy Guidelines: Revised September 2004

Governing Guidelines

1. Empowerment Principle

The concept of rights is inherently linked to the empowerment principle. Advocacy is committed to the belief that consumers already have skills and experience on which to draw to assist them in resolving their concerns. Advocates are required to be a strong voice for those consumers who have limited ability to self-advocate, or who are likely to be experiencing institutional discrimination.

A consumer-centred and flexible focus with access to a continuum of empowering strategies is required to ensure the most appropriate approach for each consumer. Working in an empowering way is based on the belief that it is better to equip and support consumers to solve their own problems than to take over their problems and fix them on their behalf. The empowerment principle supports the consumer to resolve the current issue with assistance, and to learn skills and knowledge to develop confidence to self-advocate if and when similar issues arise in the future.

2. Low-Level Resolution

The intention of the Act and the Code of Health and Disability Services Consumers' Rights ("the Code") is to promote resolution of complaints at the lowest appropriate level. Often the quickest and most satisfactory way of dealing with grievances is for the consumer to deal directly with the actual provider of the service. The nationwide advocacy service established under the Act is therefore fundamental to this aim of low-level resolution.

3. Code of Practice

Advocacy service providers and advocates shall comply with the Code as if they were providers for the purposes of the Code, except where such compliance is inconsistent with these guidelines.

4. Interpretation of and Comment on Rights

Advocacy service organisations and individual advocates shall refer any request for interpretation of the Code to the Commissioner.

Advocacy service organisations and individual advocates shall not offer opinions about the interpretation of the Code or other rights except to refer consumers, providers or media to any relevant decisions or statements by the courts, Human Rights Review Tribunal or the Commissioner and to assist consumers or providers to understand those decisions and statements.

5. Quality

It is important that the quality and effectiveness of the advocacy service is monitored and evaluated regularly and that improvements to the service are made on the basis of feedback from consumers, complainants, providers and advocates.

Advocacy Practice Guidelines

6. Empowered Consumers

Consumers remain in control and take responsibility for their issues, concerns and rights. Advocates, through empowerment advocacy and encouragement, assist all consumers and other complainants to act on their own behalf. If the consumer is unable to act on his or her own behalf or it is culturally inappropriate for the consumer to speak on his or her own behalf and requests the advocate to do so, the advocate may accept instructions to act or assist on behalf of the consumer.

7. Protecting the Wider Body of Consumers

Advocates may have concerns about a provider's practice or any other matter that relates to the rights of health consumers or disability consumers or both (whether in relation to a particular consumer, a group of consumers or consumers generally).

These concerns may have arisen through an advocate working with a consumer who is unwilling or unable to complain, or from trends identified by the advocate in the course of his or her work, or from concerns raised by others in the community. The concerns can relate to an individual provider's practice, a group of providers' practice, and/or systems and processes used by the provider/s, or a combination of provider practice and the systems and processes being used. When concerns are not confined to a specific provider's practice or a specific system or process, it is sometimes referred to as being a "systemic" concern.

In order to protect the wider body of consumers and ensure the proper accountability of providers, an advocacy service may contact providers directly about the concerns raised, or draw the matter directly to the Commissioner's attention.

The advocacy service can contact the provider directly in the first instance when concerns can be appropriately resolved at a low level. The service manager shall notify the Director of Advocacy of all direct contacts about systemic and non-systemic concerns made by advocates, in the absence of a formal complaint.

An advocate shall refer systemic and non-systemic concerns that cannot be dealt with appropriately with low level resolution directly to the Health and Disability Commissioner. A referral shall also be made where the concern has been raised previously by the advocacy service, and the provider has not responded or taken appropriate action.

8. Priorities

Persons who are least able to self-advocate, and those persons whose welfare is most at risk and who do not have an appropriate support person, are the priority for all inquiry and complaint advocacy services to consumers. Those considered as having their welfare most at risk are likely to be consumers who may experience two or more of the following:

- Very little social contact
- little or no family support

- difficulty in communicating and being understood
- living in a situation where physical, emotional, mental or financial abuse by an informal or formal caregiver is threatened or has occurred
- mental illness and/or drug or alcohol addictions that may impede their ability to reason and/or be understood or taken seriously.

It is important for advocates to establish, build and maintain positive working relationships with informal and formal providers/caregivers where the consumer whose welfare is most at risk is required to use the ongoing services of the provider or caregiver.

9. Consumer Interdependence

When working with consumers, advocates assist and encourage them to develop their own support networks. This enables them to remain in control and take responsibility for their own issues, concerns and rights. Ongoing support networks may include family, extended family, friends and neighbours, other consumers, paid professionals or advocacy groups to meet their ongoing advocacy needs and to assist in the resolution of their issues. Health and disability consumer advocacy may be used in conjunction with a consumer's network of support people.

10. Role of Advocates

An advocate provides information, facilitates, and makes it as easy as possible for the consumer to pursue and resolve his or her concerns and issues with advocacy support. An advocate provides assistance to consumers to pursue a complaint through any informal or formal procedures, including proceedings before a health professional body.

An advocate assists a consumer to gain knowledge, and offers skill training to assist the consumer to develop confidence to represent herself/himself. This is so that the consumer is supported to resolve the current issue with assistance and to resolve future issues, where possible, using the skills and knowledge gained through working alongside an advocate.

When assisting a consumer, advocates shall not offer opinions as to whether there has been a breach of the Code. The advocate represents or assists the consumer to resolve issues. While advocates may need to obtain information about a consumer's concerns, they shall not investigate or adjudicate on issues raised, nor act as an impartial mediator.

If resolution is not achieved, the advocate shall, if requested by the consumer, assist the consumer in finding an appropriate forum where issues raised may be mediated or complaints may be investigated. This can involve the advocate in supporting a consumer through the Health and Disability Commissioner complaint processes and/or the Director of Proceedings processes.

11. Advocates' Role with Providers

Advocacy services and advocates support consumers who believe their rights under the Code have been breached. Advocates convey the consumer's issues, concerns and/or complaints, not their own. Advocates are on the side of the consumer and may present some challenging situations to the provider, but this does not prevent them from being fair, considerate and professional in all their dealings with providers.

Advocates do not offer an opinion as to whether there has been a breach of the Code, nor are they impartial mediators, investigators or adjudicators. Advocates give free presentations to provider group, on advocacy services, the Health and Disability Commissioner role, the Code, and the complaints processes available to consumers. Presentations should, where possible, be in a format appropriate to the needs of the audience.

12. Confidentiality

Advocacy services and advocates shall not make statements to the media, or in presentations, or in personal communications that identify individual consumers or providers, nor comment whether specific actions by providers, either real or hypothetical, are or would be in breach of the Code. Advocates shall comply with the Advocacy Service Organisation's media policy, which upholds this guideline.

Management Practice Guidelines13. Consumers' Needs and Accessibility

Subject to the priorities imposed in Guideline 8 of these guidelines, advocacy service providers and advocates shall take positive steps to ensure that they are able to meet the needs of any particular person or groups of persons for whom they have contracted with the Director of Advocacy to provide services. Advocacy service providers shall therefore take positive steps to ensure advocacy services are equally accessible to all groups of consumers.

Specialist nationwide advocacy services may be contracted with the Director of Advocacy to provide consumers with specialised advocacy. Advocates shall inform consumers of the availability of such nationwide advocacy services and any existing specialised community support groups.

14. Advocate Support

Advocacy service providers shall ensure that appropriate support systems are in place for individual advocates. This may include induction, training, performance management, peer supervision via support and review, risk management procedures, physical safety and appropriate specialist support.

15. Relationship of the Service Provider to Consumer

Advocacy service providers, rather than individual advocates, are contracted to provide services to the consumer. Consumers shall be advised that the advocate is providing the service as an employee of the advocacy service provider.

16. Referrals to Other Agencies

Advocacy service providers shall establish and maintain effective links with relevant agencies, including community groups, and refer consumers to those agencies as and when appropriate.

17. Information Systems

The collection, accurate recording and transfer of information pertaining to the services provided by advocacy organisations, including trends in consumer issues, assists in the efficient and effective management of advocacy services. It provides valuable information as to the present and future needs of consumers and the need for any improvements to the service.

Reporting requirements in line with contractual obligations shall be facilitated by the use of information systems approved by the Health and Disability Commissioner.

18. Publicity and Promotion

The integrity (principles and professionalism) of the advocacy service is maintained by ensuring consistency in all publicity provided about the Health and Disability Commissioners' Advocacy Service.

The Health and Disability Commissioner will provide all generic promotional and educational material, about the Code and the role of the Commissioner, directed to consumers and providers. Promotional and educational material will, where possible, be in accessible formats for consumers. Any specific promotional and educational information produced by individual advocacy service providers will be sent to the Director of Advocacy, prior to publication, for comment. Formal public speaking engagements and papers for publication by advocacy service providers and individual advocates will be notified in advance to the Director of Advocacy for comment.

Explanatory Note

The first Health and Disability Commissioner's Advocacy Service Guidelines were approved in 1996. The Minister of Health approved the revised and updated guidelines on 24 February 2005 following a comprehensive consultation process where opportunities for comment were extended to a wide range of people and organisations that included representatives of health consumers, disability services consumers, health care providers, disability services providers and professional bodies.

The revised guidelines reflect the development and maturity of the nationwide advocacy service and have taken into account the responses received during the consultation process. The new guidelines also clarify the distinction between governing, management and advocacy practice guidelines.

Free copies of the guidelines will be available to the public on the Health and Disability Commissioners' web site <http://www.hdc.org.nz> or directly from the Health and Disability Commissioner, the Director of Advocacy or from any of the three advocacy organisations providing Health and Disability Commissioner's advocacy services by phone (0800 11 22 33) or email requests (hdc@hdc.org.nz).

Clause 15	241.97	248.50

Explanatory Note

This note is not part of the amendment, but is intended to indicate its general effect.

This amendment to the Ministerial Direction in relation to Special Benefit ("the direction"), which takes effect on 1 April 2005, makes the remaining amendments to the direction arising out of the Working for Families package, including:

- a change to an element of the formula used to assess special benefit for applicants with dependent children to 25% of the applicant's allowable costs from 1 April 2005. The element remains at 30% of allowable costs for other applicants;
- replacing reference to the invalid's benefit in cash assets limits with reference to the new Schedule 31 of the Social Security Act 1964 which comes into force on that date;
- replacing the new paragraph (aa) of the definition of chargeable income, which would have been inserted on 1 April 2005 by the Direction in relation to Special Benefit Amendment 2005, with a new paragraph to provide for the inclusion of family support in the assessment of special benefit where it is not paid by instalments.

A savings provision makes it clear that these and the other changes to the direction in the package will not affect a special benefit granted before 1 April 2005 until the benefit is next reviewed.

The amendment also adjusts standard costs in the Schedule of the direction to take into account a 2.70% increase in the Consumers Price Index, and omits provisions of the Schedule relating to grandparented rates of sickness benefit that have become obsolete.

Electricity Commission

Electricity Act 1992

Notice of Making of Electricity Governance Amendment Rules (No. 21) 2005 and Notice of Reasons for Decision

1. Pursuant to section 172i of the Electricity Act 1992, I notify the amendment of the Electricity Governance Rules 2003 ("the Rules") under section 172H of the Electricity Act 1992.

2. The empowering provision for the electricity governance regulations in relation to which the Rules are amended is section 172D (1) (7) of the Electricity Act 1992.

3. A brief description of the nature of the amendment to Rule 7.1 of Section IV of Part F follows:

The amendment consists of inserting a provision for the Electricity Commission to allow Transpower a longer period than the 90 days currently set out in the Rules in which to submit a proposed transmission pricing methodology to the Electricity Commission.

4. The amendment is made in reliance on section 172E (3) of the Electricity Act 1992.

5. Pursuant to section 172z (4) of the Electricity Act 1992, the reasons for my decision to amend the Rules are that:

- Transpower has advised that it requires additional time to complete the proposed transmission pricing methodology this year, due to the limited staff resources available to complete the work required, and the potential for competing resource requirements to meet other regulatory requirements of both the Electricity and Commerce Commissions; and
- it is conceivable that 90 days may also not be sufficient in future years, particularly if there are further changes to the Part F framework in the Rules which impact on the preparation of the transmission pricing methodology.

6. These Rules come into force on 21 April 2005.

7. Copies of the Rules may be inspected free of charge or purchased from the Electricity Commission, Level Seven, ASB Bank Tower, 2 Hunter Street, Wellington.

The Rules can also be viewed on the Electricity Commission web site:

Notice of Making of a Recommendation Concerning the Electricity Governance Rules 2003 – Rule Amendment Proposal No. 56

This notice of a recommendation concerning the Electricity Governance Rules 2003 (“Rules”), Rule Amendment Proposal No. 56, is issued by the Electricity Commission (“Commission”), established under the Electricity Act 1992 (“Act”), pursuant to section 172E (2) (c) of that Act.

Section 172E (2) (c) provides that, no later than 10 working days after making a recommendation concerning the Rules to the Minister of Energy (“Minister”), the Commission must publicise the recommendation and the assessment completed under section 172F of the Act.

Recommendation

The Commission made a recommendation that Rule 7.1 of section IV of Part F of the Rules be amended, in reliance on section 172E (3) of the Act, on 18 March 2005.

Section 172E (3) provides that section 172E (2) (b) and section 172F (which relate to consultation and assessments) do not apply if the Commission considers that it is necessary or desirable in the public interest that the proposed rules be made urgently. Instead, consultation and the assessment must be carried out within six months of the rule being made. In reliance on section 172E (3), no such assessment has been carried out at this stage.

Recommended Amendment to the Rules

The recommended amendment to the Rules was the insertion of the words

“(or such longer period as the Board may allow)”

after the words

in Rule 7.1 of section IV of Part F, to provide for the Commission to allow Transpower a longer period than the 90 days currently set out in the Rules in which to submit a proposed transmission pricing methodology.

A copy of the Commission’s recommendation is available, at no cost, on the Commission’s web site:

<http://www.electricitycommission.govt.nz/rulesandregs/recommend>

Dated at Wellington this 18th day of March 2005.
