Release of the New Zealand Energy Efficiency and Conservation Strategy 2017-2022

After considering the report and recommendations from consultation on the draft New Zealand Energy Efficiency and Conservation Strategy pursuant to section 17(2)(c) of the Energy Efficiency and Conservation Act 2000, the Minister of Energy and Resources gives the following notice:

The Minister of Energy and Resources released the New Zealand Energy Efficiency and Conservation Strategy 2017-2022 (“Strategy”). It is titled “Unlocking our energy productivity and renewable potential” and is New Zealand’s fourth national Energy Efficiency and Conservation Strategy. It states the Government’s policies in relation to the promotion of energy efficiency, energy conservation, and the use of renewable sources of energy. Formal submissions contributed to the final Strategy.

The Strategy outlines the objectives, targets and means for the period 2017-2022 that will facilitate energy efficiency improvements and the increased use of renewable energy. The goal of this Strategy is for New Zealand to have an energy productive and low emissions economy with a focus on three priority areas:

1. Renewable and efficient use of process heat;
2. efficient and low-emissions transport; and
3. innovative and efficient use of electricity.

Contributing to this goal are three objectives: one for businesses, one for public sector agencies, and one for individuals, households and community institutions.

The Strategy includes an industrial emissions intensity target, an electric vehicles target, and a renewable electricity generation target. A series of actions are outlined in the Strategy, which are the means for achieving the objectives and targets. The actions range from existing government programmes to new actions, such as the development of a process heat action plan.

The overall direction of the final Strategy remains the same as the draft, subject to some amendments, such as clarifying the link between the goal, targets and actions, and the wider government context, and including the existing renewable electricity target.

The Strategy is consistent with existing Government Policy Statements and National Policy Statements (NPS), including the NPS for Renewable Electricity Generation 2011, currently in force under the Resource Management Act 1991.

A copy of the Strategy can be downloaded from www.mbie.govt.nz/info-services/sectors-industries/energy/energy-strategies or viewed at the head office of the Ministry of Business, Innovation and Employment at 15 Stout Street, Wellington.

Dated at Wellington this 21st day of June 2017.

HON JUDITH COLLINS, Minister of Energy and Resources.

General Section

Code of Professional Responsibility and Standards for the Teaching Profession

I give notice that, pursuant to sections 387 and 382(h) of the Education Act 1989, the Education Council of Aotearoa New Zealand will issue the Code of Professional Responsibility and Standards for the Teaching Profession to take effect from 30 June 2017.

In meeting the legislative requirements, the Code of Professional Responsibility is the code of conduct referred to in section 387 of the Education Act 1989. The Standards for the Teaching Profession are the standards for ongoing practice and criteria for the issue of practising certificates of different kinds referred to in section 382(h) of the Education Act 1989.

The Code of Professional Responsibility sets out the high standards of integrity and professional behaviour expected of all members of the teaching profession. The Code of Professional Responsibility will be binding on all teachers who hold a practising certificate and on all authorised persons. It replaces the Code of Ethics for Certificated Teachers.

The Standards for the Teaching Profession describe the essential holistic components of effective teaching practice in New Zealand. They serve as a benchmark to guide everyday practice, a tool to guide appraisal and a framework for lifelong professional learning and development. Over time teachers will be required to meet the Standards for the Teaching Profession in order to be issued with and to renew a full or subject to confirmation practising certificate. For new graduates, the Graduating Teacher Standards will apply until such time as the Education Council makes changes to its Initial Teacher Education requirements.

Together the Code of Professional Responsibility and Standards for the Teaching Profession articulate the high standards of teaching and ethical practice expected of all teachers, thereby providing learners, their families and whānau, and the public with high levels of trust and confidence in the teaching profession.

The Code of Professional Responsibility and Standards for the Teaching Profession are available from the Education Council website at www.educationcouncil.org.nz.

Dated at Auckland this 21st day of June 2017.
